University of Cincinnati College of Law

Accessing College of Law Student Printers – Mac OS X

To access the law school lab printers as well as the SBA printer, you must be on campus and connected to a network via wireless or cabled LAN connection.

Open “System Preferences” and then select “Print&Scan”.

Click the “+” to add a printer, then select “Add Printer or Scanner”. For the next five steps you may refer to Figure 1 below.

Press the IP icon at the top of the window.

Ensure that “Line Printer Daemon – LPD” is selected in the protocol area.

Enter “oak.uc.edu” for the address. (This address is different than the address in the screen shot below.)

Enter “law.upstairs.q” for the queue name.

Change the name to “Upstairs Lab”

In the “Use” area, click the up/down arrow, and choose “Select printer software”, then scroll down and select “HP Laserjet 9050”.

Click “Add”, then select “2000-sheet Input Tray (Tray 4), then OK.

Figure 1

To print to the printer in the upstairs lab you must select “Upstairs Lab Printers” from the print dialog.

You may repeat this process for the downstairs lab printers and the SBA printer using “law.downstairs.q” and “law.sbaoffice.q” respectively.

After you’ve printed to one of the student printers the job will arrive at the Pharos release station and is denoted by the name you use to login onto your laptop.